Description of the study and procedures:

1. The study includes several experimental tasks on pronunciation and grammar.
2. The study is conducted in three languages (Polish, English, Norwegian).
3. The entire study lasts about 1h.
4. Tasks for speech production are recorded with the aid of a speech recorder.
5. The study is held at the AcqVA Aurora Language Lab at the University of Tromsø in April 2023.
6. During the study, cell phones and other electronic devices should be turned off and should be left outside the study room.
7. If you use glasses for computer work or reading, you are required to have them during the experiment.

Experimental tasks

The experiment consists of three parts including tasks on speech perception and production and grammar tasks.

Part 1. Read a short text in each of the three languages tested (i.e., Polish, English and Norwegian) and tell two short stories – one based on pictures and one on the indicated topic (approx. 30 min.).

Part 2. Translate several sentences (displayed in the slides) from Polish into Norwegian (approx. 10 min.).

Part 3. Participants will be asked to fill out a personal questionnaire covering history of language acquisition and use, as well as competency tests in each foreign language (English and Norwegian) (approx. 20 min).

Compensation for your time

You will be compensated for your time spent on the participation in the entire study with a gift card worth NOK 300. If you withdraw during the study, you will be compensated in proportion to the time spent on the study.
